

Thomas J. Henry is Representing Marines, Families Exposed to Contaminated Water at Camp Lejeune

Marines, Families, Workers Turn to Thomas J. Henry After Developing Serious Cancers and Illnesses at Camp Lejeune

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, August 8, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Nationally recognized trial attorney Thomas J. Henry is representing Marine veterans and their families as they seek financial compensation for cancers and other serious illnesses suffered as a result of contaminated water at Marine Base Camp Lejeune in Jacksonville, North Carolina.

On August 2, the United States Senate passed the PACT Act. This bill will allow Marines, families, and individuals who served, lived, and worked at Camp Lejeune to pursue financial compensation for damages related to contaminated water at the base.

In anticipation of President Biden signing the bill into law, Marines and families across the county have hired Thomas J. Henry to represent them in their Camp Lejeune claims.

According to the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, contamination of drinking water at Camp Lejeune can be traced back to the early 1950s. The agency notes that contaminated wells remained open until 1985. Among the dangerous chemicals found in the contaminated water at Marine Base Camp Lejeune are benzene, trichloroethylene (TCE), perchloroethylene (PCE), and vinyl chloride (VC).

These toxic chemicals have been linked to a number of serious diseases and disorders including various organ cancers, multiple myeloma, non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, leukemia, Parkinson's disease, and birth defects.

Thomas J. Henry Law, PLLC is actively reviewing calls from Marines and families stationed at Camp Lejeune to ensure they are able to seek compensation for the damages they have suffered.

"It is appalling to know these Marines and their families were exposed to toxic chemicals while at Camp Lejeune," said Thomas J. Henry. "These men and women put their lives on the line for our country, and our government failed to provide them with even the most basic of needs: safe drinking water."

This is not the first time Thomas J. Henry has taken up the fight on behalf of our nation's service members and veterans. Thomas J. Henry was among the first to take action against 3M for defective combat earplugs issued to military members. His firm launched a campaign to raise awareness of the potentially defective earplugs and filed litigation to ensure service members would have the opportunity to secure compensation for their damages.

Thomas J. Henry currently represents more than 10,000 service members in their claims against 3M. Recently, one of the 3M-related cases handled by Thomas J. Henry Law was recognized as securing one of the Top 10 Personal Injury Verdicts in Florida for 2021 as determined by TopVerdict.com.
