Shot and directed by Blurred Pictures, with a concept and story by Fish himself, "Stuck Inside A Video Game" highlights the parallels between video games and real life.

During the height of the pandemic, Fish discovered the joy of the video game "The Legend of Zelda: Ocarina of Time." While navigating the infamous Water Temple, Fish was inspired to write a poem that he would later turn into a song.

FISH as "Link"

"There are so many layers to this music video. It's a cultural conversation about addiction and getting out of your own way in order to find meaning and purpose in life. As a former habitual gamer, I have learned what a healthy gaming relationship looks like for me. I hope to pass this on to others who may be struggling and realize they are not alone." - Fish

“

It's a cultural conversation about gaming and how it can affect your life for better or worse.”
