thriving and specific results. Just imagine if she made it her business to make America into an emotional health superpower.

All this confusion about where to begin to solve the many crises America is trapped in has a simple solution.

The deadly combination of creating trophy self-images and positive thinking has created an emotionally challenged America. Emotional health itself is under the radar screen. Emotional sickness keeps causing damage to all aspects of life without being identified as the cause.

image. Even define peace as selflessness. Replace positive thinking with truth-based thinking. Let selfconfidence be earned.

The mother of all social problems is the ignorance of what the mind is. Fix the ignorance of the mind. Define the mind and brain as separate entities. Create a separate brain education industry. Identify emotional health as separate from mental health. Establish emotional health hospitals and departments. Create a selflessness-generating upbringing industry.

Create Wisdom Centers, Brain Power, and Shy Power Clubs. Create emotional health apps. Create a virtual Wisdom Land...
