ABOUT First String

The FirstString platform is the ultimate tool to complement your internal talent acquisition team if you are a company. It will enable you to access the most sought-after, diverse, team-oriented, high-performing individuals without exhaustive sourcing, vetting, and expensive contract negotiations with recruiters.

So, college athletes, what does this mean to you?

FirstString will no longer allow you to be judged by an antiquated system where a static resume, found by a computer conducting a search determines if you qualify for a job. You will be trained in enhanced business communication skills and allowed to represent YOURSELF in front of potential employers. This will open the door to opportunities you never thought existed.

FirstString is the leading career technology platform committed to connecting graduating college athletes across the country to employers- making it the first National Registry for college student athletes.

It is the first app to educate, prepare and connect graduating collegiate athletes for success in meaningful, career-oriented jobs.

FirstString empowers both the employer and high intensity student athlete to make well-informed career decisions in a rapidly changing and competitive workforce.

The key features of the proprietary app include: a confidential two way portal for athletes to share information and employers to review. This innovative portal gives the students control to choose which employers they want to have interviews with based on the employer's profile and facilitates employers to select the best candidates to interview. The app also features easy video resume uploading tools and video reference capabilities.

FirstString brings humanity and authentic transparency to the job search, selection, and hiring processes - giving the next generation of leaders the confidence and tools to successfully kick-off their careers.
