Urgent care is a basically a walk-in clinic that delivers outpatient care in a dedicated healthcare facility outside a conventional emergency department. The urgent care facilities are designed for immediate care/treatment of common, non-life-threatening illnesses and injuries. The services such as immunization and vaccination, acute illness treatment, trauma treatment and other are provided in the urgent care.

The rising geriatric population and increasing cases of sports related injuries are the significant factors responsible for driving the growth of the urgent care market. Additionally, the growth in disposable income and supportive government policies also heighten the overall growth of the market. However, the risk associated with high bills due to over- utilization is estimated to obstruct the market's growth.

Growing healthcare insurance and other medical reimbursement facilities are expected to generate profitable opportunities for the market. On the other hand, the lack of awareness among population has the potential to challenge for the market's growth.
