suffering from chronic diseases such as cancer and cardiovascular diseases worldwide and an increasing demand for low-cost medical devices due to budget constraints in developing nations. In addition, the factors such as an increasing number of private hospitals which purchase refurbished devices due to budget constraints, unfavorable reimbursement scenarios for various medical treatments, and increasing initiatives taken by the leading medical device manufacturers to establish refurbished facilities in developed and developing countries have fueled the demand for refurbished equipment. However, reluctance to purchase refurbished medical devices due to the lack of awareness about the benefits of these devices and lack of standardization of policies related to the sale and use of refurbished medical devices hamper the refurbished medical equipment market growth.
