repaired. Most homeowners try to restore water fixture problems on their own to save money. But this approach is not always recommended as it may result in a costlier fix in the long run. Hiring a professional plumber like The Sewer Surgeon is the best to deal with the issue. They know what to look for when diagnosing a problem and have the equipment to help them do it. It includes infrared thermometer guns, cameras that can see down into the pipes, and gas leak detectors. These tools can help a plumber locate the issue, reducing the time it takes to solve the entire problem. A sewer and drainage system is one of the most critical areas in a home or residential plumbing system. A clogged drain or toilet is the most common red flag of a sewer blockage and may present as water backing up from a drain or a gurgling sound. Sewer backups can cause a foul odor to emit from the drains. If the situation is not addressed, it can lead to sewage backup into a home. Not only can this cause damage to the infrastructure of the property, but it contains harmful bacteria that can make people sick. Often, people experiencing the signs of sewer backup ignore them until they are too late. To prevent a home from being damaged by sewage backup and flooding, it is crucial to call an expert plumbing service provider such as The Sewer Surgeon, who offers emergency sewer repair. The team at this firm realizes that their clients prefer to keep disruptions minimal. They achieve this goal with methods that limit the work area as much as possible and avoid significant surface disruptions.

When the sewer lines get damaged, the humidity inside the building increases. And California's warm, muggy, and wet weather does not help. This leads to mildew and mold growth even on walls with no plumbing fixtures. In addition, the walls can get discolored. In these cases, homeowners should consider seeking sewer pipeline repair and replacement services. Generally, if the damage is more severe and widespread, replacement is more cost-effective, especially if structural stability is lacking. At The Sewer Surgeon, the certified plumbers give their customers an honest assessment of the condition of the sewer lines so they can make a well-informed decision between commercial sewer repair and replacement.

Blocked drains can cause wastewater to back up through the pipes and end up back in the house or a commercial property, which can cause a great deal of damage – not to mention, it can make quite a mess. A wide variety of things can cause drain blockages. The fats, oils, and debris from cooking food can settle in the pipes and congeal, which catches other debris and promotes clogging. Hair and hair products contain various oils and chemicals that can make blockages larger. Paper towels and other sanitary items can also block the toilet or drains. The primary issue is that blocked drains are not always easy to spot until they are entirely clogged and backed up. Some warning signs that a skilled plumber is needed to take a look at the drains are:

Flushing the toilet is difficult. The sink or bath empties slowly, or water pools when the drain is not plugged. A noxious smell of mold, bacteria or rot comes from the pipes. Because of this, monitoring the drains and keeping them clean is of the utmost importance. The Sewer Surgeon's plumbing specialists are available 24/7 to perform routine drain maintenance, emergency drain cleaning services, hydro jetting, drain snaking, etc. Their drain cleaning services include storm drains; sewer drains, floor drains, and more.
