The concrete repair mortars market consists of sales of concrete repair mortars by entities (organizations, sole traders, and partnerships) that refer to a type of material used to repair portions of concrete in concrete structures that have cracked and delaminated from the substrate due to reinforcement corrosion. These mortars protect concrete buildings against chemical anchoring, cracking, and corrosion while retaining moisture.

Global Concrete Repair Mortars Market Trends

According to the concrete repair mortars market overview, product innovation is a key trend gaining popularity. Key players are focusing on launching innovative concrete repair mortars that are water-based, environmentally friendly, and utilize low-hazard formulations with zero usage of VOCs (volatile organic compounds). These solutions are focused on enabling high-build and high-strength structures as well as reducing their carbon footprint. Innovative concrete repair mortars offer structural strength, reinstatement of structural integrity, long life protection, and extension. These products provide key players with a competitive edge and enhance their market position. For instance, in July 2021, Sika UK, a UK subsidiary of Sika Group, launched a low-carbon concrete repair mortar, which is manufactured utilizing low-carbon and recycled materials and provides long-term effective performance in various high-strength applications. These future sustainable concrete repair mortars are designed to produce fewer particle emissions and provide improved repair performance.
