"Tokpie while not the largest centralized exchange that was on our short list of centralized exchanges, turns out to be the most innovative and forward thinking".

Joey Stubblefield, Founder of Cryogen

Cryogen is a defi protocol that is fusing web2 with web3 to help build a scalable yet sustainable ecosystem powered by the block-chain. Cryogens utilities range from an Obituary dApp that users can pay to have their loved ones obituaries forever on the block-chain all the way to an NFT collection Called "CryoPunks" that is paying $100K in BNB to 40 lucky people.

When asked why they chose Tokpie, Cryogen Founder, Joey Stubblefield stated that "Tokpie while not the largest centralized exchange that was on our short list of centralized exchanges, turns out to be the most innovative and forward thinking". Mr. Stubblefield goes on to say that " Tokpie much like Cryogen firmly believes in rewarding their holders especially during down economic times, so it just makes sense to partner with other companies that reflect our core beliefs for the future of crypto".
