manager Chris Cooper said. "There are so many great courses throughout the state and being honored by the Golf Course Owners Association - the people who have their finger on the pulse of the industry - makes the award even more significant. "This honor is also a testament to our owner, Mr. William Cassels, who provides us the resources to ensure Tidewater delivers on its promise, and our entire staff, all of whom work tirelessly to exceed the expectations of golfers."

By virtue of winning South Carolina Golf Course of the Year honors, Tidewater advances to compete for the National Golf Course Owners Association's National Course of the Year award. The National Course of the Year award winner will be announced at the annual Golf Business Conference, which will be held January 23-25 in Orlando, Florida.

The four holes that play along Cherry Grove - 3, 4, 12, 13 - are breathtaking, but the layout's inland holes, a memorable collection of challenges that test every aspect of a player's game, are essential to the experience as well.

Tidewater's scenery, combined with its commitment to customer service, course conditions, and charity, helped propel it to the award. Another vital component of Tidewater's success is the continuity of its staff. The course employs 37 people, 20 of whom have worked there for at least seven years.
