Birlasoft's iSight empowers enterprises to manage, monitor and operate IT services landscape, through an automated platform. It encompasses Cloud Management, IT Operation Management, Workplace Automation and IT Service Management. The platform provides a single pane of glass with cognitive capabilities across multi-cloud orchestration and automation, analytics and reporting, thereby enabling predictive IT operations.

Hybrid cloud operation is a key focus area of Birlasoft across its focus Industry segments and geographies. CoreStack's AI-powered multi-cloud governance solution will enable Birlasoft to provide their customers with a single view of cloud consumption, performance, and compliance to streamline cloud operations, optimize cloud cost management and enhance security posture across multiple cloud environments.

CoreStack's NextGen Cloud Governance has provided customers with transformational outcomes with its NextGen cloud governance fabric, such as a 50% increase in cloud operational efficiencies, a 40% decrease in cloud costs, and a 100% compliance with security standards.

"As digital transformation becomes a reality for our clients, the need for comprehensive cloud management services, covering operations, consumption and security has become imperative," said R Srinivasan, Vice President, Infrastructure & Cloud Technology Services at Birlasoft. "Birlasoft brings to the table a deep understanding of client context, rooted in our experience working with enterprise clients globally, while CoreStack brings a comprehensive suite of cloud governance solutions required to render these capabilities."

The partnership will enable Birlasoft to offer cloud-agnostic, comprehensive management services, covering the areas of cloud operations, security operations and financial management (FinOps) to its clients. This will provide clients a single view of cloud consumption, performance, cyber security and compliance status while reducing both the cost of operations and the risk of high usage of cloud resources.

"Cloud migration is a strategic and transformational necessity to unlock innovation and growth in business. It's a C-level mandate," said Ezhilarasan Natarajan, CEO at CoreStack. "Birlasoft reimagines business processes for their enterprise customers, and we are thrilled to partner with them to help enterprises achieve increased agility and innovation, while also improving security and risk management."
