

GRT Network Co-Founders, Greg Roe and Trish McGeer, Wrap First Freestyle Trampoline World Championships in London

The GRT Network franchisors executed an inaugural World Championships event, live-streamed globally, resulting in massive visibility for this new extreme sport.

GEORGETOWN, ONTARIO, CANADA, August 16, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Highly recognized influencer and former National Team Canadian Trampolinist Greg Roe and Trish McGeer, founder of inGear Productions and a sports marketing specialist, have successfully wrapped the first ever Freestyle Trampoline World Championship under their organization, FTA (Freestyle Trampoline Association), and in partnership with many other global trampoline brands. The event paralleled GRT Network's franchise expansion push, another budding brainchild of Roe and McGeer.

The Freestyle Trampoline Championship brings together the sport's top competitors to battle it out with their most creative, difficult, and best executed combinations. It was held in Hackney, London, UK on August 4, 2022. A historic London building, Round Chapel, served as the venue for the event, housing several of the industry's most well-known partnering brands including EUROTRAMP and BERG Toys. representing BERG Toys and Rebel Park, an official park partner, was crowned champ after an impressive routine that resulted in a score of 44.7 out of 50.0.

Roe and McGeer first partnered in 2012 for the development and building of Greg Roe Trampoline, propelling Roe into international success. In 2016, the duo founded GRT Network and Freestyle Trampoline Association (FTA). The FTA was formed with the intention of bringing together athletes and like-minded individuals within a space conducive to creativity, uniqueness, and athleticism. The Freestyle Trampoline World Championship isn't the organization's first foray into competitive events; McGeer and Roe have also led the charge for events such as world renowned GTGames Series and Freestyle Frenzy Championships.

The GRT Network franchise opportunity offers entrepreneurs a chance to engage in this quickly growing sport — success and growth that are evident in the incredible success of August's championship competition. Franchise owners can become a staple within their community and instrumental in the growth of freestyle trampolining, all fully supported by Roe, McGeer, and their franchise support specialists. The concept is a next-level trampoline park model that provides both kids and adults an environment for freestyle trampoline and gymnastics activities within a state-of-the-art 20,000 to 30,000 square foot facility. Franchise partners gain build-out and site selection guidance, marketing strategies and collateral designs, and ongoing operational support.
