LEADING HEALTHCARE STAFFING AGENCY, ATC HEALTHCARE, REFUTES GENERALIZED STATEMENTS THAT STAFFING AGENCIES EXPLOIT HOSPITAL SYSTEMS

LAKE SUCCESS, NY, USA, August 18, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "Healthcare Staffing agencies like ATC Healthcare, exist to assist healthcare facilities to be fully staffed when they face staffing shortages. Some of the factors contributing to hospital's dilemmas are non-competitive pay, difficult job assignments, budgetary constraints, pandemic exhaustion and staff seeking alternative employment styles such as travel and flex schedules" said Jordan Savitsky a spokesman for ATC. "We are partners to the hospitals and other healthcare facilities to provide solutions that they need to complement their fulltime staff."

Lake Success, New York, (date) Recently a national media outlet published an article from the perspective claiming that medical staffing agencies exploit hospitals and drive up costs. Jordan Savitsky of ATC Healthcare, one of the largest staffing agencies nationwide, sets out to correct the narrative.

Hospital needs can fluctuate from month to month, yet they operate within budgetary constraints that limit their ability to pay overtime. When their employee fills in, it becomes very expensive to have them fill that assignment. ATC Healthcare partners with hospitals and helps them find solutions by filling these openings with staff that work on a fixed price basis helping them stay within their budget.

ATC Healthcare is sensitive to supply and demand and their local offices know their competitive market condition and how to find staff that want to work. That is why ATC is the third largest per diem medical staffing company in the United States.

ATC offers a variety of staffing opportunities for people that want to travel, require a flexible schedule, are recovering from burn out or just want to work an additional shift or two.

There are less than three million nurses in the country and the number is not growing because of attrition and lack of nurse educators to train new nurses. A nurse can work in many settings outside of the hospital, such as schools, physician offices and insurance companies. Two and a half years of pandemic has added burnout to the reason for an exodus from the hospital and exacerbated the outflow of nurses to other opportunities.

The bottom line is that ATC Healthcare is a partner to hospitals and healthcare staff while being a large part of the solution for staffing shortages. Our goal has always been to assist our hospital partners with staffing solutions that enable them to provide the best possible care to patients while minimizing disruption to their operations.
