Industry Trends:

The market is primarily driven by significant growth in the pharmaceutical industry. In line with this, the increasing prevalence of chronic diseases due to the changing lifestyle preferences of the masses is positively influencing the market across India. Moreover, the development of novel drug packaging systems and rapid technological innovations in the packaging process are creating a positive outlook for the market. Additionally, the widespread adoption of generic drugs is fueling the demand for pharmaceutical packaging. Other factors, including the rising export of pharmaceutical products and the development of sustainable packaging solutions, are also providing a boost to the market growth.
