The legal industry is evolving rapidly as new technological advancements become available. Consequently, bar associations should consider embracing a digital-first, member-driven approach to all elements of their operations in order to remain competitive. Vocalmeet and Lexum are leaders in the field of technology innovation.

“Together, Vocalmeet and Lexum makes it easier for CLE providers interested in enhancing access to CLE publications,” says Pierre-Paul Lemyre, Vice President Business Development for Lexum. “This partnership removes barriers between our respective solutions, generating new opportunities for our respective clients and prospects.”

The partnership between Vocalmeet and Lexum will help legal associations streamline their workflows, while still providing an unmatched experience for their members.

About Qweri by Lexum

Lexum is a software company that designs and operates online legal information delivery products. Lexum specializes in the management and publishing of legal information over the internet.

Lexum's Qweri product is a sophisticated front-end interface that allows hassle-free publication of online reference material, such as eBooks or annotated legislation. Drag-and-drop a MS-Word or PDF file and Qweri automatically generates an online version of your document that is structured, professionally displayed, easy to search and find, and can be annotated by users on your own website. By taking care of all aspects of electronic publishing, Qweri allows you to focus on content creation rather than content editing.
