This means buyers will maximize the amount they invest when sending money abroad to pay for properties. MTFX further defines the concept of value-added service with low transfer fees, expert guidance, fast turnaround times, risk management tools and a 24/7, easily accessible online platform.

Although many people used to turn to their banks for international transfers, they can now get considerably better value for money by relying on currency specialists. Banks are notorious for offering less than competitive exchange rates with expensive transfer or service fees on top. This shows there has always been a need for international payments specialists that focus solely on the FX marketplace and offer a more competitive service.

MTFX has stepped up to the plate, which is good news for foreign property buyers, especially since one of the common reasons people send money abroad is to purchase property and pay off mortgages.

“We offer fantastic savings through competitive exchange rates and lower conversion costs,” said Vice President Niki Ho. “We purchase currencies on the open market, our exchange rate is based on the interbank market rate, and we deal with large volumes of currency exchanges. All this allows us to pass the savings to our clients, who get a better deal than what they would receive from the bank. Remember, real estate transactions involve large sums of money. So, when you factor in our rates, which are 3-5% lower than banks, our clients stand to save thousands of dollars when paying for properties abroad. That's nothing to sneeze at." To make real estate transactions more cost-effective than ever, MTFX's service includes:

Online currency platform with great rates and low transfer fees

Multi-currency accounts that eliminate the cost of opening and managing foreign bank accounts

Live exchange rates and rate calculators to ensure transparency and eliminate surprises

Currency rate alerts to help lock in the desired rate

Foreign exchange experts that offer valuable insights into the market
