Partnering with Statista Inc., Newsweek has published a ranked list of the best plastic surgeons in the United States in each of five different surgical categories of the most common cosmetic surgery procedures of breast augmentation, liposuction, blepharoplasty, facelifts, and rhinoplasty.

I'm extremely honored to have been recognized by Newsweek in this peer reviewed process. These types of awards are valuable tools that can help guide patients towards well qualified plastic surgeons”

Dr. Rod J. Rohrich

The ranked lists were the result of an independent national survey of doctors, surgeons, plastic surgery clinic managers, and health care professionals in plastic surgery generating over 5,900 recommendations. Each candidate on the list was given an associated quality score based on that surgeon's expertise, surgical process, post-operative follow-up care, surgical outcomes, and overall quality of care provided by the candidate.

The survey identified 349 plastic surgeons which were then ranked into lists of the top 150 in each of the five specialties, with the specific rankings based on their final quality score.

Dr. Rohrich was ranked in the first position at number 1 for best rhinoplasty surgeons in the United States, with the top score of 94.64% based on the scoring system. Dr. Rohrich also appeared in the other lists, ranking number 1 in facelifts, number 3 in liposuction, number 4 in blepharoplasty, and number 6 in breast augmentation. Dr. Rohrich also ranked number 1 in both rhinoplasty and facelifts on 2021 list.

"I'm extremely honored to have been recognized by Newsweek in this peer reviewed process," says Dr. Rohrich. "These types of awards are valuable tools that can help guide patients towards well qualified plastic surgeons as surgeon selection is the single most important factor for ensuring a successful outcome in plastic surgery."

A long-standing advocate for patient safety, Dr. Rohrich lectures frequently around the world at surgical conferences and educational meetings promoting innovations in safe and effective plastic surgery practices. Much of his writing and presentations focus on rhinoplasty, and revision rhinoplasty, that is, correcting previously performed rhinoplasties that have had poor outcomes. Dr. Rohrich is also the author of the authoritative textbooks on the subject, "Dallas Rhinoplasty: Nasal Surgery by the Masters" which is now published in six languages.

"Rhinoplasty truly epitomizes plastic surgery as a whole because it is a surgery of such great finesse and takes years to master," says Dr. Rohrich. "Patients should always do their research and choose their surgeon carefully. Make sure he or she is board certified by the American Board of Medical Specialties, and has the expertise and the experience to deliver a safe and satisfactory outcome."
