In recent years, the market for organic poultry feed is anticipated to grow rapidly during the forecast period of 2022-2029. Constant resource restrictions on the delicate demand-supply balance in feed, as well as the emergence of new technologies, have prompted consumers to make informed decisions and shift their attention to nutrition-rich organic feed. This led to the introduction of organic poultry feed in the market. The organic feed market's key growth determinants are emerging markets, as demand for meat and dairy products has increased dramatically in recent years.

Data Bridge Market Research analyses that the organic poultry feed market was valued at USD 3.09 billion in 2021 and is expected to reach USD 5.31 billion by 2029, registering a CAGR of 7.00% during the forecast period of 2022 to 2029. The market report curated by the Data Bridge

Market Research team includes in-depth expert analysis, import/export analysis, patent analysis, pricing analysis, production consumption analysis, and technological advancements. Organic feed comprises certified organic components and is intended for cattle, goats, poultry, swine, and other livestock. Wheat, barley, soybean, corn, and crops grown without the use of fertilizers or chemical pesticides are among the ingredients, making the crop organic in nature. Organic feed is available in a variety of forms, including crumbles, mashes, and pelleted feeds, and is commonly requested by livestock owners who provide organic milk and meat. Organic feeds are in great demand since they are free of antibiotics, medicines, pesticides, and growth hormones, which aid in the healthy growth of animals and aid in digestion, livestock longevity, and rumen pH maintenance.

COVID-19 Impact on Organic Poultry Feed Market

COVID-19 has wreaked havoc on nearly every industry, including infrastructure, transportation, oil and gas, manufacturing, and others. Most countries enacted lockdown limitations to combat the COVID-19 pandemic, which have now been gradually removed on a phase-by-phase and industry-by-industry basis. The propionic acid industry took a huge hit as a result of the COVID-19 epidemic, which wreaked havoc on the world economy due to a shortage of raw materials and labour. Export limitations on animal feed to neighboring and other outlying nations, mostly in Europe, contributed to the shortages in supply and production. This will also decrease the growth of organic poultry feed market.

Recent Development

In October 2021, Cargill had launched poultry feed with essential oils for healthy flocks and maximized egg production. Essential oils have been added to Cargill's Nutrena Naturewise poultry feeds to meet this demand. Natural essential oils help to promote egg weight, size, and production, as well as improved palatability and a fresh aroma straight from the bag
