A breast lesion or injury is an abnormal change in breast tissue caused by disease or injury. A benign lesion is non-cancerous, whereas a malignant lesion is cancerous. Breast lumps are frequently reported by women of all ages. Breast lumps can also cause changes in the shape of the breast as well as pain. More than 90% of bumps cause benign cancer, but 10% of bumps can cause malignant cancer. Breast cancer can be diagnosed using a triple test that includes a physical examination, imaging, and a biopsy of the breasts.

The breast lesion localization methods market is being driven by the rising incidence of breast cancer. The number of breast cancer cases has increased significantly. This is primarily due to the increased use of oral contraceptives, changing lifestyles, and an increase in the number of women undergoing cosmetic surgeries such as breast enhancement. Furthermore, the introduction of technologically advanced products that are safe, accurate, and cost-effective is regarded as an important factor driving the breast lesion localization methods market.
