Autonomous Wheelchair Market Dynamics

Drivers

Growing geriatric population

The demand for autonomous wheelchairs is being driven by increasing cases of permanent and temporary mobility disability, a growing senior population, and obese persons who are unable to participate in activities that require smooth movement. Corporations frequently focus on research and advancement activities in order to promote intelligent and high-level leaders in order to support people with progressive limits. Increased use of autonomous wheelchairs is expected as a result of certain leadership.

Increasing adoption of autonomous wheelchair

In the field of mobility assistive technologies, autonomous wheelchairs have achieved major advances. Increasing use of autonomous wheelchairs, particularly in the commercial sector, such as airports, hospitals, tourist attractions, educational institutions, and the healthcare industry, is expected to enhance demand during the forecast period.

Growing cases of medical emergencies

This increase can be attributed to the rising number of medical emergencies that need the use of wheelchairs. The need for wheelchairs is boosted by post-surgical operations. These chairs are primarily used in hospitals for transporting patients, which can range from a trip to the hospital to a journey from a patient room to an MRI and even a visit to a doctor's office in a large medical centre.
