Everyone is now talking about Cannexs Burning Treez Festival was the show of the year and was an unprecedented event for the cannabis industry. Located at the newly renovated Adelanto Stadium and Event Plaza, it was an unforgettable day filled with great entertainment that finished on a beautiful summer night in the high desert. A music event production like this with open vending and consumption, never had been pulled off prior but thanks to local legalization advocate lawyer Freddy Sayegh of Green Holdings Group the concert and expo was greatly successful teaming up with local law enforcement and the town Mayor Gabriel Reyes.

The production team from Cannabis Talk 101 of iHeart Radio, facilitated the crew to make it all happen legendary radio personality Joe Grande and podcast co-host Christopher "Blue" Wright sponsored event and also coordinated the stages. Owner of Cannexs Lip Yow brought together an opportunity for fans to enjoy the top brands showcasing their exclusive products along with amazing local artist and industry legends performing for an affordable ticket.

With over 100 vendors and 50 musical acts it was an adventure all day at the event festival grounds. The excitement did not stop from beginning to end with a star filled lineup and interesting booths around every corner showcasing some the industry's best brands. The event started with panels discussing the evolution of the cannabis industry and featured some of the world's best growers and icons sharing their unique experiences. Anyone who came got to enjoy access to the interviews and then go between two stages onsite. Gameday had their season
