For New Jersey and Pennsylvania, DruvStar is approved to provide security assessment services such as Penetration testing, and Vulnerability discovery. This license is a baseline to allow vetted cybersecurity companies to provide these services to gaming and sports betting providers in the respective states.

For Arizona, DruvStar has been granted a temporary Event Wagering and Fantasy Sports Supplier license, which allows DruvStar to provide services to sports wagering and fantasy sports deployments. DruvStar is now positioned to provide cybersecurity monitoring, detection, and testing to operators in the exciting and growing sports betting market.

DruvStar was previously approved by the New York and Washington State Gaming Commissions and is permitted to offer services to gaming and sports wagering operators in Ontario, Canada.

“Regulatory bodies provide a central role in ensuring that players enjoy a responsible, fair and secure wagering experience.” stated Manjit Gombra Singh, DruvStar’s CEO and Founder.

“Thanks to these approvals, DruvStar is now able to provide an additional level of protection for the players and operators, by securing the technology environments for gaming and sports betting.”
