Opportunities

During the pandemic, the market experienced a sudden growth in the demand for hand sanitizer dispensers, which created opportunities for existing players to expand and new manufacturers to enter the market. A sudden increase in demand also led to the development of new and innovative products in the market.

Regional Analysis

The global hand sanitizer dispenser market in Asia Pacific is expected to grow fastest during the forecast period. The COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in a sudden surge in the sales of hand sanitizers and hand sanitizer dispensers. People have adopted different preventive measures such as using hand sanitizers & masks and consuming immunity-boosting supplements to fight against the infection. As the governments across the Asia Pacific region eased out certain lockdown restrictions, different offices and shops began their operations, increasing the demand for hand sanitizer dispensers significantly. This demand has been leveraged by many local & small-scale manufacturers and several small-business owners to begin manufacturing manual and automatic hand sanitizer dispensers which are suitable for public washrooms, offices, retail shops, airports, hospitals, railway stations, theaters, and other public places.
