Here is an excerpt from the interview where Spenser Olson shared his life story -
"I have been super musical my entire life. Starting as young as I can remember, I was learning songs on piano and performing them at my own little concerts in my home. I went on a few different journeys to discover who I wanted to be as an artist. Around middle school, when I started to get involved with a local church, I learned more about what it takes to be a leader. I learned that it required A LOT more than musical talent alone."

It required integrity, purity, and faith. I enjoy helping others succeed. I am now mainly songwriting and producing, providing my knowledge where I can."
During the interview, Music Trails made an observation saying, "Your lyrics are incredibly honest and humbling."

The interview also explores Spenser Olson's past competitions such as International Modeling & Talent Association convention in New York City and his full-length album, "Your Love for Us," that came after some time in the church & worship leading.

One of the most heartwarming moments in the interview was when he responded to a question about his relationship with Jesus and how it influences his decisions regarding what kind of music he creates & releases to the public.
