Middle East and the most geographically compact since the inaugural edition of the tournament in 1930. It is anticipated that over one million spectators will attend the tournament's 64 matches, and the competition will reach a global in-home television audience of over 3 billion people, with more than one billion fans tuning in to watch the final match.

Going to FIFA is one of the most memorable experiences for many teams, corporations, and families, yet the scale and complexity of the tournament and the journey of shipping can be stressful. The luggage carrying, checking in and claiming baggage at the airport, and hauling suitcases and packages down to the hotels could make the journey, not an easy journey.
