- ~organize the three-dimensional volumes and surfaces
- ~illuminate and render form in light and shadow
- ~arrange their subject using the ancient geometric principles of the Golden Section
- ~detect these same features in the works of trained master artists and be guided by their example, regardless of technique or style choice

"We have been extremely excited to see the interest in the Barnstone Method courses we offer on Terracotta," said Cat Barnstone, Myron Barnstone's daughter and Director of Barnstone Studios. "As we add to our offerings, an ever-expanding audience is able to experience the Barnstone Method's classical, atelier-style art education – now available as a complete live, online, and interactive course experience that includes:

- ~weekly live lectures with senior Barnstone Master Guide Roger Brinker
- ~recorded classes featuring the master himself, Myron Barnstone

- ~evergreen access to an ever-expanding library of recorded lectures and supporting materials

For those serious about diving in to a rigorous, highly effective approach to drawing and design, this course is an unprecedented art education opportunity that offers highest-quality foundational art training in an intensive, personalized live format."

Alumni of the course have realized immediate and lasting benefits:

"Combining Myron Barnstone's recorded lectures with Roger Brinker's live instruction was extremely helpful. Roger went into detail to explain terminology, clarify concepts, and more fully demonstrate the fundamental design concepts and drawing techniques introduced in Myron's lectures, providing a very well-rounded learning experience. I was able to apply these techniques immediately. I would definitely recommend this course!"

"Roger was the perfect instructor to pair with Myron's video trainings. Having now taken the course a second time, I plan to watch and practice these skills with these live class videos over and over, so I may better assimilate this abundance of essential art education."

~ John Orban,
Barnstone Method Alumni (Spring '22)

Students practicing the Barnstone Method gain the confidence and skill to accurately render any subject by direct observation, by memory, by theoretical reasoning, and by imagination.
