Market Overview (2017-2027)

- Forecast CAGR (2022-2027): 6.1%

The global beverage processing equipment market is anticipated to witness a surge in demand owing to growth in applications in the food and beverages industry. Increasing governmental regulations over hygienic conditions of manufacturing processes and several types of packaging are likely to propel beverage processing equipment market share.

Active local and international trade are encouraging the usage of alcoholic beverages. As a result of rising product premiumisation, consumption by middle- and low-income customers has risen considerably; thus, the output is likely to rise as well. Alcohol consumption is increasing in India and China, which could be attributable to the alcohol industry's aggressive marketing and increased prosperity in these countries. This trend favours the market for beverage processing equipment.
