Typically, asbestos exposure will have occurred sometime between the 1950s and the 1980s. Some of the most prevalent professions that encountered large quantities of asbestos include power plant workers, maritime workers, industrial workers, plumbers, pipefitters, electricians, mechanics, machinists, miners, railroad workers and construction workers, to name a few. Since the latency period for mesothelioma patients is approximately 40 years, most people diagnosed with mesothelioma or asbestos-related lung cancer in 2022 were exposed decades ago.

Although naturally occurring asbestos deposits do not exist in Indiana, numerous manufacturing industries using an abundance of asbestos-containing materials have called Indiana home for years. Jobsites with known asbestos exposure include Rolls Royce, Dow AgroSciences, Chemetron Corporation, Raybestos Friction Materials Company, General Motors, Peerless Pump and Nuturn Corporation. Additionally, George Rogers Clark National Park and various locations in Yankeetown, Evansville and Fort Wayne are known to contain asbestos.
