COVID-19 scenario analysis

Bulletproof glass production is going to be more agile after the end of COVID-19. Owing to the lockdown implemented across various countries, national and international transport have been hampered, which has significantly impacted the supply chain of bulletproof glass across the globe, thereby increasing the supply-demand gap. Thus, insufficiency in raw material supply is expected to hamper the production rate of bulletproof glass, which negatively impacts the market growth. However, this situation is expected to improve as government has started relaxing norms around the world for resuming business activities.

Top impacting factors: market scenario analysis, trends, drivers, and impact analysis

The global market for bulletproof glass is driven by rise in threat to public safety. Factors such as multipurpose applications and significant demand arising from the defense sector are expected to boost the demand during the forecast timeline. In addition, bulletproof glass is referred to as transparent armor, bullet-resistant glass, or ballistic glass. Moreover, it is an essential element of security systems that is installed at places that are likely to encounter violent assaults such as robberies, or in banks, premium vehicles, and cash trucks.
