Key Market Insights:

The increasing launches of new dental tools and equipment are expected to drive the market growth during the forecast period. For instance, LINK Product Development, a product design firm in Denver, and The Quick Company, a technology company, announced the launch of Microtray Universal, in October LINK in collaboration with The Quick Company and a Denver-based dentist. A Microtray is a small, molded plastic tray that attaches to surgical gloves and allows dentists and dental assistants quick and easy access to routinely used materials and disposables during different dental procedures. It is the first product of its type in the area of dentistry.

However, dearth of global standardization in the North America Dental Equipment market all over the world is likely to hamper growth of the global North America Dental Equipment market over the forecast period.

Market Outlook:

The epidemic of Covid-19 pandemic adversely impacted several industries. The virus outbreak in China spread across more than 100 countries around the world due to which many countries announced stringent lockdown regulations across nations in order to curb the virus spread. Several industrial operations were disrupted during this period as many businesses were closed down. The pandemic negatively impacted many markets including the one in discussion as product demand and sales significantly declined during the pandemic. However, as the pandemic situation goes back to normal, the market is likely to regain growth.

Key Market Segments:

The North America dental equipment market is expected to exhibit a CAGR of 5.0% during the forecast period, due to increasing agreements and partnerships by the key players, which is expected to boost growth of the North America dental equipment market over the forecast period. For instance, on November 2021, SprintRay Inc., a company that manufactures 3D printers, software, post-processing systems, and materials, announced a collaboration with Nobel Biocare, a leading pioneer of implant-based dental restorations. Nobel Biocare will now become a distributor of all of the SprintRay's innovative 3D printing technology, as a part of this partnership.
