Plant-based ice creams, also known as vegan ice creams, can help you lose weight, lower your risk of cardiovascular disease, and improve the texture of your skin. It is made from soy milk, coconut milk, almond milk, cashew milk, and other ingredients obtained from plants. It comes in a variety of flavours, including chocolate, orange, coconut, caramel, strawberry, and others.

Drivers

Rising popularity of low-fat desserts

In the coming years, the growing demand from the health and fitness enthusiast population for low sugar, low processed ingredient based, and label free desserts will positively affect the growth of the global plant-based ice cream market. Furthermore, rising consumption of non-dairy desserts, Keto-friendly ice cream cakes, and fruit bars for various purposes (snacks, protein, energy, etc.) are propelling demand and positively affecting sales in the global plant-based ice cream market.

Rising disposable income and rising urbanisation

Furthermore, the focus of manufacturers on developing and marketing new 'clean label' and 'label free' plant based ice cream products is driving the growth of the global plant based ice creams market in the coming years. Although the high cost of these products in the global plant-based ice cream market when compared to conventional products is a significant restraining factor for the industry, rising popularity of these products is expected to fuel demand in the coming years.

Opportunity

Increasing plant-based ice cream sales, primarily through online platforms, as online retailers offer a wide variety of plant-based ice cream, will accelerate the plant-based ice cream market's growth rate.

Recent Development

Unilever's Ben & Jerry's brand will launch two plant-based ice cream flavours in 2022: "Chocolate Milk and Cookies" and "Dirt Cake."

In 2022, the dairy-free ice cream Chocolate Chip Cookie Dough Flavor was introduced by Little Red Rooster Ice Cream Company's brand NadaMoo.

Oatly announced the introduction of a vegan ice cream bar line in 3,000 stores across the United States in 2021. The new ice cream bars have an oat milk base and are enrobed in a rich chocolate shell. They come in four flavours: Chocolate Fudge, Strawberry Swirl, Salted Caramel, and Vanilla.
