

Ulatus Partners with World-class Ed-Tech Provider Discovery Education in delivering Techbooks to Students in China

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, September 12, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Ulatus, a globally-recognized translation and localization services company that helps researchers and businesses grow beyond regional borders strengthened the strategic alliance with Discovery Education.

Discovery Education has been working with us for some time now, and the successful completion of another project has helped strengthen our relationship with them further."

Shilpa Mittal, CEO of Ulatus

The project entailed translating middle-school science textbooks from English to Simplified Chinese. The scope of the translation was 10 books. The challenging project was completed within seven weeks and met the quality benchmarks set by Discovery Education.

The long-term partnership will see academic professionals from two organizations working together to simplify access to life sciences books and provide solutions for students and teachers.

The aim of the project was to build the foundation for middle school kids in helping them understand life sciences. The highlight of the project is the importance of connectivity to deliver critical educational information such as life sciences, natural phenomena, and healthcare. Discovery Education Techbooks can be used to make the delivery of knowledge more efficient for providers and more inclusive for students.

Shilpa Mittal, CEO of Ulatus, said, "The strategic alliance with Discovery Education has been a great learning experience for Ulatus. Due to the hard work of our teams, especially our global curriculum experts, they've always given us the desired outcome. Discovery Education has been working with us for some time now, and the successful completion of this project has helped strengthen our relationship with them further."

Elizabeth Catania, Senior Director of Techbook Development at Discovery Education said, "All of our collaborations with Ulatus to date have been amazing experiences! They deliver top-notch quality within the required deadline and their team is supportive throughout the projects. This particular project was important for us and we are glad we had Ulatus for the job!"
