president, practice development. This critical practice development role at CVAUSA, places Lori Jackson as a senior leader guiding practices to optimize and flourish from both a financial and operations perspective. In the past month, key hires in Jackson, Griffin and Schwallie showcase CVAUSA's commitment to the cardiovascular field in bringing together top cardiovascular talent and leadership that continually evolves cardiovascular health forward.

“I am very excited to join the CVAUSA world-class leadership team,” said Lori Jackson, vice president, practice development, CVAUSA. “The commitment to patient care in conjunction with strong physician support will provide unparalleled outcomes while reducing the overall cost of care.”

Prior to CVAUSA, Jackson was instrumental in the recently formed Ballard Health System which was a merger of Mountain States Health alliance and Wellmont Health system forming one alliance that included 21 hospitals serving in 29 counties in the Appalachian Highlands of Northwest Tennessee, Southwest Virginia, Northwest North Carolina and Southeast Kentucky.

“I am pleased to bring Lori onboard as a key hire to CVAUSA. Her deep knowledge in cardiology is demonstrated by her positions with Ballard Health System where she served as the AVP of CV Services. Lori brings an amazing skill set, execution experience and senior acumen to CVAUSA,” said Suzette Jackie, chief operating officer, CVAUSA.
