The investment market consists of sales of investment management services by entities (organizations, sole traders, and partnerships) that manage investment-related activities such as securities underwriting, stock brokerage, and wealth management services. It does not include the value of investments held or the amount of money invested in a given year, but fees, commissions, or margins on the amounts invested. The investment industry is categorized based on the business model of the firms present in the industry though some investment firms offer other financial services.

Global Investments Market Trends

Investments market trends include wealth management firms increasingly offering hybrid services including standardized and personalized advice to their clients globally. The need for standardization and personalization of advice mainly arises due to the growing demand for consistent and robust solutions among consumers. In this regard, wealth management firms are producing computer-driven analysis to offer standardized advisory services, while also maintaining granularity in their offerings with bespoke solutions.

Global Investments Market Segments

The global investments market is segmented:

By Type: Wealth Management, Securities Brokerage and Stock Exchange Services, Investment Banking

By End-User: B2B, B2C

By Mode: Online, Offline

By Geography: The global investments market is segmented into North America, South America, Asia-Pacific, Eastern Europe, Western Europe, Middle East and Africa. Among these regions, North America accounts for the largest share.
