Trade Finance Market Overview:

The global trade finance market reached a value of US\$ 44.8 Billion in 2021. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach US$ 66.3 Billion by 2027, exhibiting a CAGR of 6.57% during 2022-2027. Trade finance, alternatively known as export finance, represents several financial products and instruments that are utilized by organizations to control and manage international trade and commerce. They are available in various types, such as structured trade finance, supply chain finance, traditional trade finance, etc. Trade finance instruments are mostly administered by banks and financial institutions. They help to streamline cash flow and ensure protection against the risks of international trade, including currency fluctuations, instances of non-payment, political instability, etc. Consequently, trade finance products are in high demand among small, medium, and large enterprises, traders, exporters, and importers across countries.

Trade Finance Market Trends:

The increasing urbanization levels and the growing expansion of global trade links are among the key factors driving the trade finance market. Besides this, the development of advanced technologies, such as artificial intelligence (AI), blockchain, machine learning (ML), and the Internet of Things (IoT), that allow the usage of natural language processing (NLP), chatbots and predictive analysis to resolve concerns, recognize market patterns, anticipate demand, etc., is acting as another significant growth-inducing factor. Furthermore, the elevating utilization of quick response (QR) codes, optical character recognition (OCR), and radio frequency identification (RFID) readers for improving the digitization of trade financing operations is also positively influencing the market growth. Additionally, the inflating investments in the banking, financial services, and insurance (BFSI) sector and the introduction of clearinghouses that analyze the financial capabilities of sellers and buyers are expected to stimulate the trade finance market over the forecasted period.

Note: We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.
