

Historic objects from World Wars I and II and the modern era will be sold online Sept. 29th by Bruneau & Co. Auctioneers

Lots will include a World War II leather flight jacket from the U.S. 23rd Bomb Squadron and a tunic worn by a brigadier general with ties to the Tuskegee Airmen

CRANSTON, RI, UNITED STATES, September 20, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A World War II leather flight jacket from the U.S. 23rd Bomb Squadron, a worsted wool tunic worn by a brigadier general who was a commanding officer at the legendary Tuskegee Army Advanced Flying School, and a Polish pre-World War II VIS-35 Radom pistol are expected top lots in Bruneau & Co.'s Historic Arms & Militaria auction on September 29th.

The online-only auction, beginning promptly at 6 pm Eastern time, is packed with 265 lots of historic objects from World Wars I and II and the modern era. These include flags, uniforms, bayonets and an array of iconic arms of both World Wars for the discerning collector. But not to worry, the catalog promises something for the novice collector as well as the advanced dealer.

"A large portion of the auction was built from a single-owner collection of fine long arms, pistols, and revolvers," said Joel Bohy, the director of Bruneau & Co.'s Arms & Militaria department. Mr. Bohy added, "There will be a selection of bayonets, fighting knives, scopes, and unusual wartime bring-back articles, to include porcelain, glassware, flags and propaganda."

There is also a single owner collection of officers' tunics and uniforms and a collection of German Hitler youth articles including, clothing, badges, books, photographs, helmets, hats, insignia, and medals. This will be just the fifth online-only Historic Arms & Militaria auction for Bruneau & Co., and in that brief time it has made a major impact in a crowded field.

General Frederick Von H. Kimble's summer-weight, worsted wool tunic has "SMILO" brigadier general stars on each epaulet, a U.S. insignia on the collar, a sterling "Myers" command pilot pin back wing on the left breast, with a two piece sew-on WWI victory and American defense bars, marked on the inside right front "Vo. H: 7267. K". The lot comes with a research folder on Kimble and is expected to change hands for $300-$500.

Kimble (1895-1978) graduated from West Point June 12, 1918. He became an infantry instructor at Camp Benning, Ga., and in 1922 he entered the air service. He served in various commands until 1942, when he became the commanding officer of the Tuskegee Army Advanced Flying School in Alabama. He retired a brigadier general in 1953. He is mentioned in the book Black Knights: The Story of the Tuskegee Airmen (Pelican, 2001).

Gen. Frederick Von H. Kimble's WWII summer-weight, worsted wool tunic has brigadier general stars on each epaulet and a U.S. insignia on the collar (est. $300-$500).

Cotton World War II Japanese flag with Rising Sun, 41 inches by 49 inches, with 2nd Marine Division insignia painted on red center, signed by 45 marines (est. $200-$400).

The Polish pre-World War II VIS-35 Radom pistol, produced circa 1938, is a 9mm weapon, serial #11039, with black checkered Bakelite grips marked "FB", a blued finish, marked on the left side of the slide with a Polish eagle and "F. B. RADOM/1938r/ VIS-WZ 35/pat. Nr. 15567", with a slotted back strap for a shoulder stock (est. 1,000-$1,500).

A Canadian Ross M-10 straight pull rifle and bayonet, circa 1916, .303 caliber, having a walnut stock with a round cartouche on the right side of the butt marked "QUEBEC", also marked "III./3/1916/KZ", with a blued finish, marked on the receiver ring "ROSS RIFLE CO./CANADA/M-10/PATENTED" with proof marks, and a sharpened bayonet and scabbard, should hit $400-$600. The barrel is 30 ½ inches; overall length is 50 ½ inches.

A cotton World War II Japanese flag with Rising Sun graphic, 41 inches by 49 inches, with the 2nd Marine Division insignia painted on the red center and marked "U.S. MARINE CORPS/1st Battalion - 2nd Marines/Guadalcanal/Tulagi/Tarawa" and "Saipan / Tinian /Okinawa/Second Division", signed on the white background by 45 marines with various duty stations and areas served in the South Pacific, has an estimate of $200-$400.

A Finnish model 39 bayonet and scabbard with walnut grips, a steel guard marked with an "S", a steel blade marked on one side of the ricasso "SK.Y", with maker's mark on the other side, and a leather scabbard marked "SK.Y" with steel reinforcement, is expected to change hands for $200-$400. The blade is 7 ¼ inches long; overall length is 11 ½ inches.

Also up for bid will be a German WWII Z.F.41 sniper scope marked "Z.F.41" and "cxn/83084", with a mount marked "6511/duv" with a waffenamt (est. $300-$500); and a U.S. Johnson model 1941 bayonet and scabbard, 11 ¾ inches long, having a Parkerized steel bayonet with lead in the cutout numbered "8827" and leather scabbard ($200-$400).
