ABOUT Integral Marketing & Advertising

Our agency is not like traditional agencies. We offer an effective and efficient model called the distributed model, also known as the virtual agency model. This model is more flexible over working hours and our ad agency can focus on the areas where our clients need help. We have part-time and full-time employees, contractors, freelancers, and more working together to meet the needs of our clients. Utilizing the best talent possible, whether that's a full-time employee or not helps us exceed our client's needs.

Flexibility is the fundamental point of our agency. Our model includes different time zones, geographical locations, and cultural backgrounds- which offers alternatives and endless possibilities as well as many opportunities to find the best talent possible with location not being a limitation.

We service brands across various industries on both the B2B and B2C side, are nimble enough to support start-ups, and even partner with other agencies to complement their offerings.
