The primary factor propelling the growth of the holographic display industry over the forecast period is the surge in demand for holographic displays for medical applications, including endoscopy and X-ray. The market for holographic displays is growing quickly due to increased holographic display adoption in advertising and events.

Holographic displays can also be tailored to meet the needs of particular industries, which presents a development opportunity for the market. In light of these variables, the industry is anticipated to expand gradually going forward. During the anticipated period, the market for holographic displays would benefit greatly from the use of holographic displays in high-end automobiles. However, the expensive price of displays and the general lack of knowledge of holographic displays serve as significant barriers to industry expansion.
