

Canopy Market: Global Opportunity Analysis, Value Chain Analysis and Industry Forecast, 2022-2029

Use of canopies in both residential and non-residential sectors is expected to drive the growth of the global canopy market.

OREGON, PORTLAND, UNITED STATES,
September 21, 2022 /

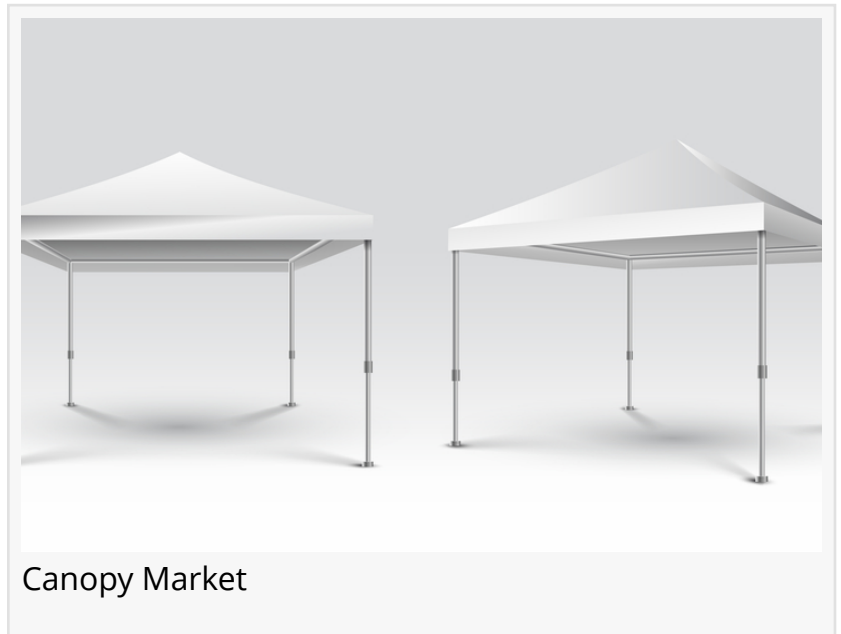

EINPresswire.com/ -- The automotive sector is significant for the growth of the global canopy market. Trailer canopies are most commonly made of aluminum among various other material and are often available in custom designs for the specific vehicle models that they are installed upon.

Aluminum canopies are very popular for trailers because it reduces the overall weight of the vehicle and thus helps improve fuel efficiency. Aluminum canopies are lightweight but highly durable. Other materials such as polyester cloth are also commonly used as non-permanent trailer covers. Commercial vehicles use canopies for the weight reduction of the roof material. The loaded goods which might often be perishable items need protection from adverse weather conditions like rain, sun or wind.

Use of canopies in both residential and non-residential sectors is expected to drive the growth of the global canopy market. Canopies are used in open areas to provide shelter from adverse weather conditions and for expansion of usable spaces. In certain buildings, canopies are used for beautification purposes. These trends help to propel the global canopy market.
