The Department of Veterans Affairs reports anywhere from 17 to 22 Veteran suicides every day. Most are given prescription medications; some of these medications are black labeled with serious side effects. It's time for better solutions.

Gier says, "Many battling Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder believe that it's a "life sentence" but as the film shows, that's not true. Wounded Heroes features Veterans that had lost hope but now have their lives back because their PTS is gone. They went from contemplating suicide to living happy fulfilling lives."

"I feel alive again, I feel rejuvenated, I feel like a soldier again." - Kyle Green, US Army

"I'm happier today than I've ever been in my entire life." - Chuck Gardea, US Air Force

"I didn't even know this kind of happiness was possible." - Sherri Waters, US Army

"We are grateful to have the opportunity to host this life changing film, with the hopes that our Veteran friends and others will gain awareness of healing opportunities they did not know existed," Lynn Fisher, President and CEO of Applied Technology Academy. The film not only features successful alternative treatments, but it also features steps for success. Gier says, "First, try the treatment option that's most appealing and then follow up with other treatment options because they work well in combination. Second, find likeminded people that have your back; don't fight this battle alone. Third, it's vital to find a new mission; a purpose bigger than yourself."

With the stresses of Covid, a divided country politically, and now the loss of Afghanistan to the Taliban, it's time to help people heal. Wounded Heroes is a film that features solutions, not only for Veterans, but also for police officers, firefighters, doctors, nurses, and anyone battling PTS.
