Key Highlights From The Report.

In September 2020, Marinomed Biotech, an Austria based respiratory and ophthalmology organization received approval for Carragelose, a first of its kind over-the-counter medicinal product. It contains decongestant xylometazoline which helps to reduce swelling of mucous, thereby assisting in easy breathing.

Most of the generic medications have been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. This is because they have met all the rigid standards as a potentially efficient drug tagged at very affordable prices. Patent expiration of a branded drug ends up in competition among generic medicine manufacturers to provide generic versions at lower costs.

The principle behind such low costs of inhalation and nasal spray generic medication is that no R&D investments, marketing, promotion, and advertising are concerned in the production of generic medication. Moreover, a wide variety of generic medicine makers have approvals to market and sell one particular product. This brings in competition within the market, leading to cheaper price of generics.
