NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, September 28, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ --

Paintings are a significant way to understand our past. Today paintings are taking the main role to tell us history. For example, by looking at past paintings we get clues about the lifestyle in the past. By closely looking at the symbolism, materials, and colors of a painting we get an idea about the era and the culture in which it was produced.

Different symbols in a portrait from the past represent the importance of those times and how these people wanted us to remember them.

Painting and History

Here we will briefly check out the different eras of painting and their history:

Romanesque

According to art historians, the Romanesque era which started during 1000 AD. was the starting point of art history. The Romanesque paintings had bold contours with simple and clean areas of color. These paintings mainly represented Christian paintings and had mythological creatures like angels, and dragons. These paintings are telling us the history of Christianity and the bible.

Gothic

The gothic era was from 1100 to 1500 AD. Here the paintings portrayed freedom as well as fear. Scenes of real human life like working in the fields and hunting were represented in the gothic era.

Another important eras of painting are Renaissance which had paintings like The kiss of Judas and The last supper. Mannerism, Baroque, classicism, and romanticism are different eras of painting that tell their own unique history.

Modern art

Modern art includes imaginative work produced during the period that spans roughly from the period of the 1860s to the 1970s. It represents the philosophies and styles of the art produced during that period. Modern art was all about experimentation and past traditions were put aside as such. Moreover, modern artists had a new perspective on arts and discovered new ways of visualizing and practicing art. Examples of modern art are sunflowers by Van Gogh, autumn rhythm by Jackson Pollock, and the persistence of memory by Salvador Dali. More recent artistic production is often called contemporary art or postmodern art.

The other forms of modern arts are called symbolism, Neo-Impressionism, cubism, Fauvism, Futurism, Expressionism, Suprematism, expressionism, Constructivism, Metaphysical painting, De Stijl, Dada, Surrealism, Social Realism, Abstract Expressionism, Pop art, minimalism, Op art, and Neo-Expressionism.

Contemporary

The art of today, produced in the second half of the 20th century or in the 21st century is called contemporary art. Contemporary artists work in a culturally diverse, globally influenced, and technologically advancing world. Abstract painting is a form of contemporary art that is very famous today. The most famous example of contemporary art continues to be the portrait of the Mona Lisa by Leonardo da Vinci, which was produced from 1503 to 1505. Other paintings that tell us the history of contemporary art are Balloon dog orange by Jeff Koons (2000) and Mobile Lovers by Banksy (2014)

The work of contemporary artists is a dynamic combination of materials, methods, concepts, and subjects that challenge traditional boundaries and defy easy definitions. Diverse and
