Everyone has the right to be enlightened. It just takes the right teacher.

BIRMINGHAM, USA, September 25, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- EdifyOnline, an education technology company based in Birmingham, United States, announced today that it will partner with the Association of Indian Universities (AIU), based in New Delhi, India.

"An ambitious vision of NEP 2020 Policy puts the teachers and students at the center, said Mr. Anil P. Agarwal, the Founder/Chairman of Edify Online Corp". He further added that the "NEP 2020 policy and the Indian University Grant Commission (UGC) Guidelines of July 2021 both emphasize teachers and students to be internationally competitive, essentially directing the efforts of higher education institutions (HEI) toward internationalizing higher education".

"The partnership of AIU with EdifyOnline aims at facilitating the implementation of the Indian NEP 2020 Policy for Internationalization of Higher Education (IHE)", said Secretary General, Dr. (Mrs.) Pankaj Mittal. AIU and EdifyOnline will collaborate on simple holistic concepts to inspire Indian faculty to work with international academic talent to become aware of international standards and then act as indigenous "Catalysts" for their institutions to participate in the mission of internationalizing Indian higher education.

"In Catalyst (holistic) option, a concept promoted by EdifyOnline, teachers, and students take priority over the bureaucratic burdens. An MoU between Indian and international institutions is not needed until after common objectives are socialized within Indian institution, its faculty, and students", with the help of indigenous 'Catalysts', said Mr. Anil P. Agarwal".

"With the help of EdifyOnline and its Indian diaspora, I envision building collaborative relationships with U.S. universities to enable students on both sides to spend a semester on respective campuses, exposing them to international culture, knowledge, and understanding, said Secretary General of AIU, Dr. (Mrs.) Pankaj Mittal".
