EINPresswire.com/ -- IndustryARC, in its latest report, predicts that the Taurine Market size is forecast to reach $347 million by 2026, growing at a CAGR of 5.3% during the forecast period 2021-2026. Taurine, clinically known as 2-aminoethanesulfonic acid, is an endogenous end metabolite that is distributed in various tissues at high concentrations. It is a sulfur-containing acidic amino acid synthesized from cysteine and is excreted without any further metabolism. The growing awareness of consumers regarding the cytoprotective actions of taurine contributes to the improvement in the clinical and nutritional health of humans through various mechanisms like antioxidation, energy production, neuromodulation, and osmoregulation. For instance, taurine helps in the production of glutathione peroxidase, the reaction of which is responsible for the anti-inflammatory activity of taurine. Moreover, taurine prevents the decrease in expression and secretion of extracellular superoxide dismutase, thereby protecting the human body from oxidative stress. Additionally, Taurine has become a supplement of choice by keen gym-goers and for those participating in a variety of sports as it improves concentration levels during sports and it has also been proven to enhance athletic performance, which is set to further enhance the overall market developments of the Taurine Market for the period 2021-2026.
