CLEVELAND, OHIO, US, September 27, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The 55th edition of the perennially popular Kovels' Antiques & Collectibles Price Guide by Terry Kovel and Kim Kovel is now available at booksellers nationwide and online at Kovels.com. With more tips, more marks, and more prices than any other price guide on the market, Kovels' Antiques & Collectibles Price Guide 2023 gives antiques enthusiasts the information they need to quickly identify and price finds, and to buy and sell more confidently.

Not only can you price your antiques, you can use our book as an encyclopedia of the antiques market, enjoying a visual overview with prices, photos, and insightful information.”

Terry Kovel, Author

For more than six decades, casual and expert collectors have turned to the Kovels, the most trusted name in the industry, for their knowledge and research. The just-released 2023 price guide includes more than 3,150 photos; 500 makers' marks, logos, and dates; and 12,500 all-new prices of antiques and collectibles in more than 700 categories sought-after by collectors, including Advertising, Furniture, Glass, Jewelry, Kitchen, Porcelain, Tiffany, Toys, Sewing, Tools, and more. Prices are from actual sales—no estimates—and are reviewed for accuracy.

Best of all, there's an entirely new center section in Kovels' 2023 book — “Collecting Trends: Twentieth-Century American Studio Ceramics” — showcasing important makers of mid-century studio art pottery. Also included is an exclusive report on the past year's record-setting prices, as well as insider information, comments on trends and pricing patterns, hundreds of expert tips, and fakes alerts. All of this enables collectors to buy, sell, and collect with confidence.

Here is a peek at some of the fascinating listings in Kovels' 2023 price guide: The most expensive item is a rare and important 1700s Meissen shelf clock with a gilt-bronze mount and a signed Barrey à Paris movement that auctioned for $1,593,000. The least expensive entries were bottle caps. A 1960s “My Pop's Root Beer” crown cap and a bottle cap with “Pasteurized Milk” by “N.F. &

J. C. Schoppee" of Machias, Maine, picturing a cow's head each sold for $2. Also listed for $2 is a saucer by Taylor, Smith & Taylor. The largest item listed this year is an iron garden gate in the Napoleon III style with gilt lions and acanthus scrollwork. It is 108 inches by 156 inches and sold for $2,440. The smallest is a dome-shaped brass button decorated with flowers from the 1800s. It is only one inch across and sold for $38.

There are always some strange and even weird things listed in Kovels' price books. Artificial legs have been listed several times, usually the plain wooden stump that is pictured in stories of pirates of earlier days. This year the weirdest item was a taxidermy jackrabbit head with antlers. The top bidder paid $136.
