My hope is that people will find my music relatable and can use it for self-healing, and to communicate feelings when they don't have words.”

EISA

During her recent interview with “On Air with Mario Lopez,” EISA announced the official release date of September 23rd, and gave a sneak peak of the process of creating this new music and the accompanying visuals we can expect in the coming weeks with the official music video.

“Only if You let it” is an emotional, relatable, easy listening Pop/R&B track with soulful vocals that unpack unrequited love through its lyricism. The track puts EISA's powerful and dynamic vocals on display, showcasing her wide range from belting to whistle tones.

“I wanted to create a story from a different perspective than your average love song. Though it was written with a mostly fictional storyline, it was inspired by real life experiences and events that I can personally relate to. It's a story about falling in love with someone who is close to you, but not being able to express those feelings to them. My hope is that people will find my music relatable and can use it for self-healing, and to communicate feelings when they don't have words.” - EISA

"Only if You let it" was accompanied by an official audio video and behind the scenes video that premiered on EISA's YouTube channel on Monday, September 26th. The official music video will be released in early October and was produced by DNT Entertainment, Directed by Dani Thompson with the support of an all female crew consisting of: Creative Director - Joelle Cary, Production Coordinator - Lauren Halferty, Production Assistant - Anika Perera and hair and makeup by Jackie Merlau.
