EINPresswire.com/ -- Steve-N-Sons
Landscaping (SNS) Motto: "Big enough to serve you, small enough to care."

Steve-N-Sons Landscaping (SNS) started in 1993 with two mowers and a vision to help people create and maintain beautiful landscapes. The goal then was to create unique, professional landscapes our clients would be proud to talk with their neighbors about, and to provide the kind of professional lawn care that those neighbors would be compelled to ask about. It worked, and SNS have been growing in Utah ever since. Since then SNS has grown into multiple, specialized crews, each complimenting the other with professional quality lawn care and outstanding creative landscaping. SNS is proud to say they have created some of the most breathtaking commercial and residential landscapes on the Wasatch front, and they are excited to outdo themselves on every next project. SNS hopes it'll be your project.

Utah Valley Parade of Homes Sponsor: Central Bank (CB) has been serving Utah County for over 130 years and is proud of the history of sustained growth and security. Since the economy began to falter in 2008, CB has relied on their own reserves by not taking any “bailout” or TARP money—evidence that they have remained strong, safe, and secure since 1891. Central Bank (CB) believes the continuing progress is a direct result of dedication to caring for the individual needs of the people and communities served. Prime for Over a Century: On October 17, 1891, Milan Packard (great-great-grandfather of president, Mark Packard) helped establish the Springville Banking Company. The bank expanded gradually until 1924 when the community-focused officers and directors were instrumental in attracting the Columbia Steel Mill to the site between Provo and Springville. From this point, the bank enjoyed steady and substantial growth, and it was one of few banks that did not require Government Debenture Capital during the Great Depression. Progressive and ably managed, Springville Banking Company was the first bank in Utah to qualify for FDIC insurance on deposits.

University Avenue in Provo, Utah, where Central Bank's Provo Office now resides. The State Bank of Provo was organized in 1902 by 16 men of incredibly diverse backgrounds—sheep farmer, plumber, attorney, you name it—who all wanted to find a safe, stable place to save and borrow money. From its founding, the State Bank of Provo grew steadily and the officers and board members were proud to be part of the bank that knew every customer as a friend. On July 1, 1966, the Springville Banking Company and the State Bank of Provo merged under the new name of Central Bank and Trust. This was not simply a union of the two oldest banks in Utah County, but a consolidation of strength that would provide greater lending power, more financial stability, and superior services. Central Bank opened its doors in Spanish Fork in 1969, followed shortly by offices in the Provo Riverside Plaza in 1971 and Mapleton in 1972. Continued expansion brought offices to Payson in 1980, Orem in 1982, American Fork in 1996, Lehi in 2003, Pleasant Grove in 2008, and Traverse Mountain in 2018. These new facilities demonstrate Central Bank's commitment to serving Utah County and the people who call it "home."
