The application segment of the global space situational awareness (SSA) market includes space weather, space surveillance and tracking, near earth objects, and others. The space surveillance segment accounted for the largest market share in 2018 and is anticipated to dominate in the years ahead. Space surveillance and tracking (SST) includes observation of active and inactive satellites, fragmentation debris, and a discarded launcher stage that revolves around Earth. According to the space surveillance network catalog documented by the U.S., in the last 60 years of space activities, there were more than 5,251 launches. Nearly 42,000 space objects have been tracked in orbit, out of which over 23,000 still exist in space and are regularly tracked. By end-user, the market is majorly classified into government and military and commercial.

"Largest Share Holder Region"

By region, North America dominated the global space situational awareness (SSA) market or Global Space Launch Services Market in 2018 and is expected to hold the largest share in the years ahead. This can be attributed to the U.S. being the corporate headquarters of some leading market players.
