seniors, veterans, adults and children with disabilities to showcase their talents by creating live, drive-in, drive-through and virtual events; information resources; and vendor opportunities to bring community awareness of the talents and abilities of those with special needs. The UPFAD Fall Festival is an in-person event this year after being held as a drive-through program the past two years because of the pandemic.

"I'm excited that we are able to have everyone come out and celebrate and have fun together this year," said Destiny Carter, the 17-year-old director of events for UPFAD. "The festival is a fun way to thank all of the people who have supported UPFAD over the years. We want families to come to our events knowing we put our hearts in every thought. Our wide range of vendors and talent ensure you have the most fun experience at our events."
