

Artha, a Premium Assisted Living Home, opens its doors to the Elderly

Gurgaon-based luxury senior care home caters to day-use facilities, independent & assisted living for elderly travelling for surgery or when the family is away.

GURGAON, INDIA, October 1, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A country's elderly population is a valuable resource for any society. Ageing, as a natural phenomenon, comes with its opportunities and challenges. According to Census 2011, India has over 10 Crore senior citizens (60+years), constituting 8.6% of the total population. More than 8% of the Delhi & NCR population comprises the elderly aged 60+ years. By 2050, India is expected to have over 33 Crore entering the elderly category. Although the median age in India remains 29, we cannot ignore the senior age categories that remain vital to India.

Why the need for elderly care in India?

The life spans are increasing, which means more and more elders would need competent care in facilities beyond their homes. Also, immigration within India and across borders is on the rise. This trend means more and more families are getting fragmented, and a more significant section of the elderly now live alone or away from their loved ones. The hospitals are getting modern by the day but only cater to disease care and do not solve the increasing concerns for holistic elderly care. There is a growing need for elderly care in post-surgery scenarios. Also, lifestyle diseases like Blood Pressure fluctuations, Diabetes are rising. Many of the elderly also grapple with memory loss, Dementia, and Alzheimer's disease. Mobility can also be challenging, as many seniors are stuck to their wheelchairs or have bone and muscle concerns. Taking care of oneself can be challenging when faced with medical conditions.
